oredoomed to be a wasted opportunity, so far as the public good is concerned. This cannot be doubted by any dispassionate and candid observer, for it is evidently and notoriously a campaign of false issues. The results will only serve to illustrate the slow and tedious progress of political enlightenment. There is in the sham issues being discussed on the stump absolutely nothing new. The same platitudes and pretenses have been employed many times for the same end. If the voters of California had memories they would recognize this at once. . They would perceive that they were being cheated with false pretenses, and that there was literally nothing at the bottom of all this clamor but the desire for office and what it will bring. Experience proves that popular governments are incapable of framing and pursuing farsighted policies. Where the masses rule, impulsiveness and credulity, passion and prejudice, are the most potent political influences. the returns of the valley counties which have suffered from the deposition of debris from the mines. A careful analysis of the returns by counties, however, exhibits so many unaccountable anomalies that it is clearly impossible to ascribe either the cause of increase or the cause of decrease to widely-acting common causes. Thus we find increase in some mining counties where we might have expected decrease; and decrease in some agricultural counties where we should have anticipated increase. A member of the State Board of Equalization who has been "interviewed" on the subject, attributes the general decrease in valuation to several causes, viz: the negligence of Assessors: the action of Boards of Supervisors in making reductions; the lack of harmony in rules of assessment: the failure to get at the personal property, especially in the large towns; and the reduction of railroad assessments. Of course the decline of $51,000,000 in valuation will involve an increase in taxation, unless the Legislature can curtail the demands of the State Government. The decline is a very serious one, amounting to one-twelfth of the whole property returns of the State, and therefore it will demand an equally serious increase of taxation to restore the

How It Works Its Way into the Body and How to Counteract It. One of the greatest scourges of the present year in all parts of America has been malaria. This is a trouble so treacherous in its nature and so dangerous in its results as justly cause at prehension wherever it has ap-peared. But there are so many erroneous ideas upon the subject that a few words are in order at a time when people are subject to malarial influences.

Malaria, which means simp'y bad air, the common name of a class of diseases which arise from spores of decaying vegetable man ter, thrown off from stagnant pools or pile of vegetation undergoing decomposition. These spores when inhaled with the breath or taken into the system with water, soon eater the blood, and germinating there find a foot-hold, whereby the whole system is poisoned and the various functions disordered. When the germ theory of disease was first advanced it was supposed that these spores were of an-imal nature, and, like the bacteria in diphtheria, were propagated in the blood, but they are now conceived to be of vegetable origin, like the fungi found on decaying wood or in cellars. The source of this state of the air is generally swamps or stagnant poels, which, partially dried by the sun, send forth vapors loaded with this malarial poison These vapors descend to the earth in the night, cooled by the loss of temperature, and breathed by sleepers, are readily inhaled. Hence persons living near stagnant pools or marshes are liable to be afflicted with chills and fever, and such localities are never healthy, though they are more so when the streams flowing into them are pure, and also when the water is high. Again the drainage of houses, slaughter-houses, barns, etc., are a fertile source of malaria. One will often notice in coming into the neighborhood of one of these sluggish streams that pass through almost every village, a most villainous smell caused by the offensive refuse which commu cially on hot days. This absorption into the system by the lungs or taken in through water, which also absorbs it from the air poisons the blood and deranges the who system. This poison is also developed i force in wells and springs when they become low, and the result of drinking these is the same as breathing the poisonous air. In a time of drought the great quantity of vegetation that dries up in the meadows, stubble fields and pastures, the corn fields and forest leaves produces the same efflavia. On the prairies, when large tracts of prairie ground are turned over, the decaying vegetation is a widespread cause of malaria.

The evils which follow malarial poisoning are almost infinite. Disease of a malignant and dangerous nature, accompanied by symp-toms the most distressing, are certain to manifest themselves, and life is a burden so long as this poison remains in the system. indications of malarial poisoning are loss of appetite, shortness of breath, pains about the heart, wasting of flesh and strength, despondency, nervousness, chilly sensations, unac-countable lassitude, dull pains in various parts of the body, head-aches, dizziness, a coated tongue and dry mouth, night sweats, of the above symptoms may be an indication But if malarial poison could not find odgment in the human body, it would just as harmless as the oxygen of the air. The great difficulty is that, after being absorbed into the system, it produces obstructions in the stomach and lungs, clogs the cir culation of the blood, affects the kidneys, liver and other organs, and brings on disease of a most dangerous character. There is only one known way by which these diseases may be avoided or cured after they have once made their appearance, and that is by keer. ing the great purifying organs of the body in in a perfect condition was ever afflicted by malarial poisor. And when these organs a scientists and the majority of the general liver in constant health, and hence premalarial sickness. ## What Expert Buyers Gain.

By far the largest portion of our trade comes from those who are expert buyers. They have found out that the advantages which our Establishment and its method of business presents to inexperienced buyers are of equally as great benefit to them. We mention briefly two reasons why so many who are best posted choose to trade here:

FIRST-IN REGARD TO VARIETY

Certain wants require certain goods. If the buyer is purchasing SCHOOL SHOES, and a dozen kinds are placed before him, there will be ONE KIND better suited to his needs than any other. He is certainly able to make a more satisfactory and judicious selection than if the variety was smaller, and he had only half as many Shoes to choose from. HE THEREFORE SAVES MONEY BY GET-TING JUST WHAT HE WANTS. So it would be if he should chance to buy in the Dry Goods Room, or in any of the other Departments.

SECOND-AS TO PRICE.

As we have but ONE PRICE, which every one can see marked plainly on our goods, and from which we can never deviate, we must make that price the LOWEST POSSIBLE, and one by which we are willing to have our House judged by. The very presence of expert buyers in our stores makes it necessary that we should do this, or our trade would rapidly diminish. If we had no fixed prices, as is the custom of many Houses, we should be able to sell our goods at a better profit, charging as much in every case as we thought the customer would stand. But we claim the LOWEST PRICES, and believe that our method of business is the only one consistent with it, and which is alike just to both buyer and seller.

The subject of our postrait, Past Assistant Engineer George W. Melville, was born in New York City in Jacuary, 1841. Prior to his engagement on the Jeannette he had experience in Arctic exploration, having been engineer on the Tigress during her cruise after Buddington and his party from the Polaris. He served on the Chattanooga during he war, and when he left on the Jeannette had been twelve years at sea. Is will be remembered that the Jeannette was crushed by the ice on June 23 1881, in latitude 77° north and 157° cast. Her crew put off in three boots, two of which were rafely landed at the mouth of the River Lena. Weary months elapsed before the fate of the meu in the third, that containing Cantain De Leng and his varie was accer-Captain De Long and his party, was ascercaptain De Long and his party, was accer-tained, and we are indebted to the energy and heroism of Meiville for the knowledge. It appears from the documents which the poor fellow left at various places and which Mel-ville secured, that De Long and thirteen companions succeeded in landing at one of the mouths of the Lena on or about September 17th. They abandoned their boat and built a cairn, where they rested a few days. They afterwards crossed the Lena on the ice at a point consider abiy to the south of where they had landed, and marched southwards on the western sid of the river, until they dropped down an The Jeannette left San Francisco in July, died from hunger and exhaustion, excepting 1879, and was twice heard of before the news two men whom DeLong had sent ahead, and of her destruction, which was published in who gave Engineer Melville such information New York on the 21st of December, last as led to the discovery of the bodies. Treat all Chrente and Special Diseases, VOUNG MEN

There are many at the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation, and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkish hus, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.
